

Manager's Guide — Welcome to Fantasy Football!

This guide is for Managers — the people who run a team in the Peak Dragon Fantasy Football League. It assumes you've never played fantasy football before and don't need to know much about the NFL either. We'll explain everything from scratch, step by step. Take your time, and don't worry — you can't break anything.

1. What is fantasy football?

Fantasy football is a game you play using real NFL players.

Here's the whole idea in a few sentences:

- You are a Manager. You run one Team.
- Your Team is made up of real NFL players that you pick (a quarterback, some running backs, some receivers, and so on).
- Every week, those real players go play their real NFL games. When your players do good things in real life — catch passes, score touchdowns — you earn points.
- Each week you're matched up against one other Manager in our league. Whoever's players score more total points that week wins the week.
- Do that for a whole season, and the Managers with the best records make the playoffs and play for the championship.

That's it. You're basically a coach/owner who picks players and decides who plays each week, and the real NFL does the rest.

You never play football yourself, and you don't have to watch every game. The site tracks what real players do and turns it into points for you automatically.

2. The words we use (don't worry, they're simple)

Word	What it means
League	Our whole competition — all the teams together.
Manager	You! The person running a team.
Team	Your squad of NFL players. You have exactly one.
Commissioner	The grown-up (or organiser) who runs the league and sets it up.
Player	A real NFL athlete (or a whole team's defense) you can put on your Team.
Roster	All the players on your Team.
Lineup	The players you choose to start this week (only they earn points).
Bench	Players on your Team who aren't starting this week (they earn nothing this week).
Matchup	Your head-to-head game against another Manager for one week.
Standings	The ranked list of teams by wins and losses.
Draft	The event where everyone picks their players to start the season.
Playoffs	The tournament at the end to crown a champion.

3. Getting started

Logging in

Your Commissioner will give you a username and password. Go to the league website, click Log in, and enter them. The site works on a phone or a computer.

Set up your profile

Open My Profile from the menu (tap the ☰ menu button). There you can:

- Change your display name (what other Managers see).
- Change your password to something you'll remember.

A tour of the menu

Tap the ☰ menu to see all your pages:

Page	What it's for
Home	Your starting page and league news.
My Team	Set your weekly lineup (who starts).
Matchup	See this week's head-to-head score.
Standings	See everyone's win-loss records.
Playoffs	See the end-of-season tournament bracket.
Free Agents	Add players nobody owns; drop players you don't want.
Trades	Offer trades to other Managers.
Activity	A history of all the adds, drops, and trades in the league.
Draft Room	Where you pick your team on draft day.
My Profile	Your name and password.

4. Positions & your roster

Football players play different positions. Each does a different job, and each scores points differently. Here are the ones you'll draft:

- QB — Quarterback. Throws the ball. Earns points mostly for passing yards and touchdowns (and a bit for running).
- RB — Running Back. Runs with the ball. Earns points for rushing yards and touchdowns, and for catching passes.
- WR — Wide Receiver. Catches passes. Earns points for receiving yards, catches, and touchdowns.
- TE — Tight End. A mix of blocker and receiver. Scores like a receiver (catches, yards, touchdowns).
- K — Kicker. Kicks field goals and extra points.
- DEF — Defense/Special Teams. This is a whole NFL team's defense as one "player." It earns points for sacks, interceptions, fumble recoveries, touchdowns, and for stopping the other team from scoring.

Your starting lineup

Each week you start this many of each position (this is our league's setup):

Slot	How many	You put here...
QB	1	a quarterback
RB	2	two running backs
WR	2	two wide receivers
TE	1	a tight end
FLEX	1	any RB, WR, or TE (your choice)
K	1	a kicker
DEF	1	a team defense
Bench	5	extra players, ready to sub in another week

So you start 9 players each week and keep 5 on the bench — 14 players total on your roster.

FLEX is just a flexible spot. If you have three great receivers, you can start two at WR and the third in your FLEX. It gives you options.

Only your starters earn points each week. Bench players earn nothing that week — but they're valuable as backups for byes and injuries (see below).

5. The Draft — building your team

The Draft is draft day: the one time everyone picks their players to begin the season. It happens in the Draft Room page, live, with everyone at the same time.

How the picking order works — the "snake"

Managers take turns picking one player at a time. We use a snake draft, which just means the order reverses each round so it's fair:

- Round 1: Manager 1, 2, 3, 4
- Round 2: Manager 4, 3, 2, 1 (reversed!)
- Round 3: Manager 1, 2, 3, 4 (and so on)

That way, whoever picks last in one round picks first in the next. You keep picking until everyone's roster is full (14 players each).

Once a player is taken, they're gone

Every NFL player can only be on one team in our league. If someone drafts Patrick Mahomes, no one else can have him. That's why the draft matters — you're claiming players before anyone else can.

Getting into the Draft Room

Open the Draft Room page on draft day. The room updates by itself — you don't need to refresh. If the Commissioner scheduled a start time, the page will show a countdown and bring you in automatically the moment the draft begins, so just have it open and wait.

At the top you'll always see the live status banner telling you what's happening:

- When it's someone else's turn: "On the clock: [team name]" with a countdown, and "Next up: [team name]" — plus a line telling you how many picks until your turn (e.g. "Your next pick: 3 picks away"). When you're the very next picker it says "You're up next!"
- When it's your turn: a big green "You're on the clock — make your pick below!" banner with your timer. To make sure you don't miss it, the browser tab title flashes "🕒 YOUR PICK!" and (if your device allows it) you'll hear a little beep or feel a buzz — handy if you switched to another app.

Your pick timer

You get a set amount of time per pick (your Commissioner decides how long). The countdown shows on your turn. Depending on the Commissioner's setup it's labelled either "Time left" (nothing happens automatically — you stay on the clock until you pick) or "Auto-pick in" (when it hits zero, the system drafts for you). Either way: pick before it runs out when you can!

Finding players — the available list

Below the banner is the list of every player still available, best first. To find who you want fast:

- Position chips across the top — tap QB, RB, WR, TE, K, or DEF to show only that position (tap All to go back). This is the easy way to grab a Kicker or Defense late.
- A search box — type a player's name or NFL team (e.g. "Mahomes" or "SF").
- Each row shows the player's rank, position, NFL team, and bye week. Watch for a small injury flag next to a name — IR (injured reserve), Q (questionable), OUT, SUSP (suspended), and so on — a warning that the player may not be healthy.

Tap Draft on a player to pick them (only shows on your turn), or + Queue to add them to your wish-list for later.

"My roster so far"

While you draft, a row of pills shows what you've got versus what you still need — like QB 0/1, RB 1/2, WR 0/2, TE 0/1, K 0/1, DEF 0/1. Green means that spot is filled; use it to make sure you don't forget a position.

Friendly warning: if you try to draft a second quarterback, kicker, or defense when you already have enough, the site double-checks with you first — you only start one of each, so extras are usually a wasted pick. (It never stops you from stacking running backs, receivers, or tight ends — depth there is good.)

The Queue — your secret weapon

Before and during the draft, build a Queue: your private, ranked wish-list of players you want. Add players with + Queue. On your turn you can grab your top queued player fast. In the My Queue list you can reorder it with the ▲/▼ arrows (top of the list = drafted first) or Remove a player. Your Queue is private — no one else sees it — and it shows each player's bye week and any injury flag too.

Auto-pick and auto-draft (safety nets)

If your timer runs out (and the Commissioner turned on auto-pick), the system makes a pick for you: it takes the top player from your Queue, or the best available player if your Queue is empty. And if you can't make the draft at all, the Commissioner can put your team on auto-draft so it fills a sensible roster automatically. Tip: always build a Queue so any auto-picks match what you'd want.

The board & who's in the room

Further down, the board shows every pick as a grid — one column per team, one row per round — so you can see the whole draft at a glance, with the team currently on the clock highlighted. Next to each team you'll see:

- a green ● dot if that Manager is in the room right now, or a red ○ if they're not; and
- an "auto" tag if that team is on auto-draft.

These are just so you know who's around — none of it changes how you pick.

Beginner draft tips

- Draft starters first. Get your QB, RBs, WRs, and TE early. Grab a Kicker and Defense near the end — you only need one of each (use the K/DEF filter chips to find them).
- Fill every position. Use the "My roster so far" pills so you can field a legal lineup (see the table in §4).
- Use your bench for backups. Later picks are your depth for bye weeks and injuries.
- Mind the flags. Skip a player with an IR/OUT flag unless it's a great value and you have bench room, and glance at bye weeks so your starters aren't all off in the same week.

6. Setting your lineup each week

This is the main thing you do during the season, and it's quick.

Each week, go to My Team and choose which players start (go in your lineup) and which sit on the bench. Put a player in each slot from §4. Only starters score.

The weekly lock 🕒

Your lineup locks at kickoff time each week (the Commissioner sets it, usually the first game of the week). Once it locks, you can't change it for that week, so set your lineup before then.

Why lineup choices matter — byes and injuries

- Bye weeks: every NFL team gets one week off during the season (a "bye"). A player on a bye doesn't play and scores 0. Don't start them that week — start a bench player instead.
- Injuries: if your star is hurt and won't play, start someone else.

Checking your lineup every week is the #1 habit of a good Manager. If you forget, your lineup usually stays the same as last week — which is fine, unless someone's on a bye or injured.

7. How scoring works

Your starters earn points based on what they do in their real games. Here are our league's exact point values (this is called Half-PPR scoring — "PPR" means Points Per Reception, and "half" means half a point per catch):

Offense (QB, RB, WR, TE)

Action	Points
Catching a pass (a "reception")	0.5 each
Every 10 rushing or receiving yards	1 (0.1 per yard)
Every 25 passing yards	1 (0.04 per yard)
Rushing or receiving touchdown	6
Passing touchdown	4
Throwing an interception	-2
Losing a fumble	-2

Kicker (K)

Action	Points
Field goal made	3
Extra point made	1

Defense / Special Teams (DEF)

Action	Points
Sack	1
Interception	2
Fumble recovery	2
Touchdown	6
Safety	2
Points allowed (how many the defense gave up)	+10 if 0 · +7 if 1–6 · +4 if 7–13 · +1 if 14–20 · 0 if 21–27 · –1 if 28–34 · –4 if 35+

A worked example

Say your running back has a good day:

- Rushes for 80 yards → 8 points
- Scores 1 rushing touchdown → 6 points
- Catches 3 passes → 1.5 points
- Those catches went for 20 yards → 2 points

Total: 17.5 points from one player. Add up all nine of your starters and that's your team's score for the week.

Live scores vs. final scores

- During the games, the site shows live scores that update as things happen. These are not final — they can still change.
- A day or two after the games, scores are settled to the official numbers and the week is locked in. Sometimes a score nudges up or down when the official stats come in. That's normal.

Small note: because of how the official stats are published, Kickers and Defenses keep their live scores through settlement. Nothing you need to do — just so you're not surprised.

8. Matchups — winning your week

Every week you're paired against one other Manager. This is your Matchup (see the Matchup page).

- Add up your nine starters' points → your team score.
- Whoever has the higher score wins the week. The winner gets a win (W); the loser gets a loss (L).
- If the league has an odd number of teams, one team gets a week off (a bye) and doesn't play that week.

You don't control the other Manager, and you don't play defense against them — you just want your own players to score as much as possible.

9. Standings — the league table

The Standings page ranks every team, best record at the top. Teams are ordered by:

1. Win-loss record (more wins = higher), then
2. Total points scored all season (as a tiebreaker).

Your record is written like 7-4 (7 wins, 4 losses). The regular season is 14 weeks. The Standings decide who makes the playoffs — so every week counts!

The Standings count regular-season games only. Once the playoffs start, playoff results don't change your regular-season record.

10. Adding, dropping & trading players

After the draft, your roster isn't locked forever. You can improve it in two ways.

Free agents (Add/Drop)

Any player nobody owns is a free agent. On the Free Agents page you can add one to your team — but rosters are full (14), so you must drop one of your players to make room. Adds are first-come, first-served: no waiting, no bidding. If you want a free agent, grab them before another Manager does.

Why add/drop? To replace an injured player, pick up someone who's suddenly playing great, or grab a backup before a bye week.

Trades

A Trade is a swap of players with another Manager. On the Trades page:

1. You choose a Manager to trade with.
2. Pick the player(s) you give and the player(s) you get.
3. Send the offer. The other Manager sees it and can accept or reject it.
4. If they accept, the players swap automatically. If they reject (or you cancel), nothing changes.

Trades only work if both Managers agree — it's an offer, not a grab. Be fair and friendly; good trades help both teams.

Trade deadline: the Commissioner may set a week after which trading closes (like real sports). After the deadline, no more trades — so don't wait too long. Trades and free-agent moves open once the draft is complete.

The Activity page shows every add, drop, and trade in the league, so it's all out in the open.

11. Playoffs & becoming champion 🏆

At the end of the 14-week regular season, the best teams make the playoffs — a single tournament to crown a champion.

- The Commissioner decides how many teams make it (for example, the top 4).
- Teams are seeded by their regular-season Standings: the #1 record plays the lowest qualifier, and so on.
- The playoffs are single elimination: win and you advance, lose and you're out. Each playoff round is its own week, scored just like a regular week — set your lineup!
- Keep winning and you reach the final. Win the final and you're the league champion. 🎉

You can watch the whole bracket on the Playoffs page.

12. Your season at a glance

1. Draft day: pick your 14 players in the Draft Room.
 2. Each week (14 weeks): set your lineup on My Team before the lock, then watch your players earn points. Win your Matchup to climb the Standings.
 3. Anytime: add/drop free agents and propose trades to improve your team.
 4. Playoffs: finish high enough in the Standings, then win your way through the bracket to the championship.

13. Top tips for new Managers

- ☒ Set your lineup every single week before the lock. This is the biggest thing.
 - ☒ Watch for bye weeks and injuries — don't start a player who isn't playing.
 - ☒ Build a Queue before the draft so you're never caught off guard.
 - ☒ Check Free Agents now and then — a great player might be sitting there unowned.
 - ☒ Propose fair trades — the best deals help both teams.
 - ☒ Have fun. You'll learn as you go, and everyone starts as a beginner.

14. Quick glossary

- Auto-draft: a team the Commissioner has set to pick automatically (shown with an "auto" tag in the Draft Room). Auto-pick is the related safety net that drafts for you only if your own timer runs out.

- Bye: a week a player (or your whole team, if the league is odd-numbered) has off. A player on a bye scores 0.
- Draft: the event where everyone picks players to start the season.
- Free agent: a player nobody owns; you can add them.
- FLEX: a lineup slot you fill with any RB, WR, or TE.
- Half-PPR: our scoring — half a point for every catch, plus yards and touchdowns.
- Lineup: the starters you choose for the week (only they score).
- Matchup: your head-to-head game vs another Manager for the week.
- On the clock: whoever's turn it is to pick in the draft right now. The Draft Room banner shows who's on the clock, who's up next, and how many picks until yours.
- PPR: "points per reception" — points for catching passes.
- Queue: your private ranked wish-list of players for the draft.
- Roster: all 14 players on your team.
- Snake draft: a draft where the pick order reverses each round.
- Standings: the league table, ranked by record.
- Trade: a player swap two Managers both agree to.
- Waiver / bidding: we don't use these — free agents are just first-come, first-served.

Have fun, and good luck this season! 🎮🏈
